Synopsis

At RTI International (RTI), we see an innovation park as a strategically-planned, purpose-built environment where faculty, staff, and students can work, live, and innovate. In 2016, RTI and Imam Abdulrahman Bin Faisal University (IAU) partnered in developing the Middle East's premier health innovation hub by converging IAU's research and clinical excellence with the country's strategic Vision 2030 and growing the BioPharma industry presence in the region. The partnership identified eight essential ingredients for a sustainable health innovation ecosystem and is currently implementing strategic programs to organically grow the IAU Medical City into leading health innovations hub in the GCC.

About the Speaker

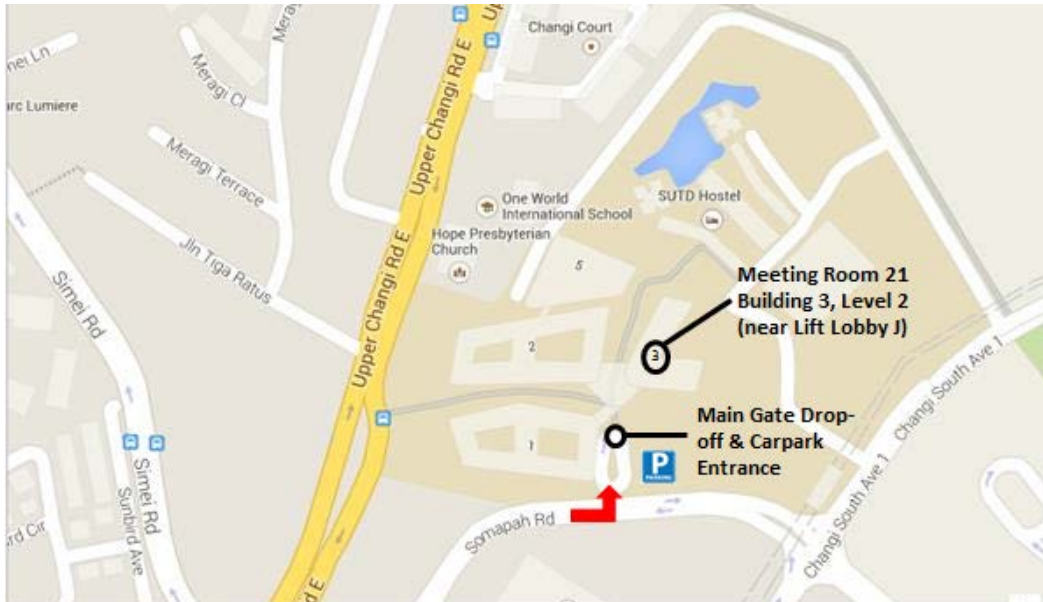

With extensive experience in commercialization, strategic technology transfer and new product development, Zagit has led projects for clients in the United States, Saudi Arabia, the Commonwealth of Independent States, United Arab Emirates, and Turkey. He has championed technology scouting and partnership development activities, identified innovation assets and developed economic development strategies. He speaks worldwide on topics related to open innovation in health care, technology translation, and commercialization. Originally from Ufa in Russia, Zagit earned his B.S. in Molecular Biology and Genetics from Middle East Technical University and his Ph.D. Pharmaceutical Sciences from the University of Nebraska Medical Center.
